Make the Pledge to Shift Your Shopping this Holiday Season

This holiday season the Eastern Kentucky Local-Motive Alliance urges the public to think about their shopping habits and asks consumers to make the pledge to shift some of their holiday shopping this season to local establishments.

For retailers the holidays represent their busiest time of year where in some cases they earn as much as 40% of their annual sales in just November and December. Every year billions of dollars are spent by Americans during the holidays both online and in-stores. According to the National Retail Federation (NRF) American families will spend between $700 and $800 on shopping this holiday season. The NRF expects national holiday sales to increase by 3.9% to $602.1 billion this year and for there to over 700,000 seasonal employees hired by retailers throughout the holiday season. Online holiday shopping could see as much as a 15% increase this season resulting in $82 billion in sales.

When this money is spent at a national chain store or online it does not benefit the local community it was purchased in to the same extent that local purchases do, because when money is spent locally it gets recirculated into the local economy and continues to circulate generating two to three times as much economic activity. That is why the Eastern Kentucky Local-Motive Alliance is urging consumers to shift their shopping this holiday season. By taking a pledge to shift at least 10% of their holiday shopping budget to local establishments consumers can help make a difference in the region during the holidays. For example if all the households in just Estill, Powell, Wolfe, and Lee counties shifted $50 of their holiday shopping it would result in over $700,000 being infused back in the region. According to the Prosper Insights and Analytics 2012 consumer spending survey the two largest expenditures this year will be gifts for family members and food purchases. The Eastern Kentucky Local Motive Alliance would like to suggest that when trying to find items to localize, try with the gifts for family and food items for your holiday meals. In 2012, American spent over $28 billion on gift cards and this year the Eastern Kentucky Local Motive Alliance suggests consumers shift to local gift certificates rather than gift cards. This year there are 26 days between Thanksgiving and Christmas, surely we can find a day to explore what is being offered by retailers in our own communities.

The Eastern Kentucky Local-Motive Alliance was born out of a partnership between the Estill Development Alliance, the UK Appalachian Center and the Business Alliance for Local Living Economies (BALLE) with funding from the Mary Reynolds Babcock Foundation.

The Local-Motive alliance is an organization that seeks to strengthen the local economies of communities in Eastern Kentucky by encouraging businesses to collaborate, educating consumers about the benefits of local shopping, and by promoting connections between local businesses and the community. The alliance offers local businesses networking opportunities as well as services such as regional branding, training and joint promotions. However the Local-Motive doesn't only serve the businesses in eastern Kentucky, it informs consumers of opportunities to purchase products in the region and special events held by network members. For more information about the alliance or the shift your shopping campaign visit the Local-Motive Alliance online at whatyourlocalmotive.com.

A young black bear was eating from my safflower feeder the other day. Sure they are cute, but it's really not fair. Developers are destroying their habitat and the bears have no place to go. If you have bears at your feeders, don't encourage them. Be careful.
