grass, 7-10 days for tall fescue, and 5-7 days for perennial ryegrass. However this time can be greatly extended when surface soil moisture is very lacking, when there are periods of wet/dry conditions, when the surface soil temperature remains cold, or when old seed or poor quality seed is used.

Turf-type tall fescue is recommended for most KY lawns and the top varieties include Regenerate, Grade 3, Hemi, Bizem, Fesnova, Catalyst, Bullseye, Falcon IV, Falcon V, Terrano, and Firebird 2. Select the best variety and purchase certified seed when possible. Such seed is generally pure and true to type for the characteristics developed by the plant breeder. Certified seed will contain fewer weed and other crop seed contaminants and will be free of inert filler. If you are unable to buy certified seed, it is still very important to buy seed by variety name. Seeding rate for turf-type tall fescue is 6 pounds per 1,000 square feet. Make sure you get the seed in contact with the soil for success.

Mow as frequently as needed to keep the old grass or weeds from shading the new seedlings. As the new seedlings develop, continue mowing at the height intended for the entire turf area. Do not let the seedlings grow tall before mowing. Weed control can usually begin, if needed, after the new seedlings have grown enough to have been mowed one or two times.

For more detailed information on lawn care, contact the Estill County Extension Office at 723-4557.

Acanthus mollis

Commonly known as "bear's breeches," this Mediterranean native is grown as much for its attractive leaves as for its showy flower spikes. Its foliage is thought to have inspired the appearance of the "Corinthian" column found in ancient Greek architecture. - Brenda Weaver

UK Offers Spring Grazing School

The University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, Food, and Environment will host a Spring Grazing School will be held on May 21-22, 2014 at the Woodford County Extension office and the C. Oran Little Research Center in Versailles, KY.

This two-day program will include hands-on exercises, such as building temporary paddocks and watering systems, assessing pasture production, and designing your own grazing systems. Classroom sessions include a variety of topics, such as forage management and establishment, animal health, and how to better manage grazing systems. Emphasis will be on spring and summer grazing options for beef and dairy cattle, sheep and goats.

This program is designed to help producers explore opportunities that can increase the productivity of their land and profitability of their operation. In this two-day program, participants will get to see examples of different forages and how management practices impact yield. Also, they will see an example of rotational grazing, and the different stages of pasture growth after cattle have been removed from the paddock. For those who are interested in better utilizing their pastures, this is a great opportunity to learn how to do that. This program is designed for both new and veteran producers who can learn how to improve their operations.

Anyone interested in this program may register, but space is limited to the first 45 individuals so apply early. The $50.00 registration fee includes all materials, grazing manuals, breaks, and lunch both days. To register, contact Cody Smith, Master Grazer Coordinator, at (859) 257-7512 or cody.smith@uky.edu. A program and additional information can be found at the internet website <http://www2.ca.uky.edu/grazer/GrazingSchool2014Brochure.pdf>

Birding BITS BY Cindy Brook

What's That?
If you're experimenting with new types of bird food, such as fruit, suet or even meal worms, and the birds aren't eating it, just be patient. It might take a few days for them to recognize the new stuff as food. But they'll figure it out soon enough.
