Maudie's Naughties

True Love

If you love something, set it free
If it comes back, it was, and always will be yours
If it never returns, it was never yours to begin with.
If it just sits in our living room, messes up your stuff, eats your food, used your telephone, takes your money, and never behaves as if you actually set it free in the first place, you're either married to it or gave birth to it.

Class Assignment

A teacher gave her 5th grade class the assignment of getting their parents to tell them a story with a moral. The next day, the kids come to class and tell their stories.

Little Kathy tells how they put all the eggs from their farm in a basket and were taking them to the market. The pickup truck hit a bump in the road and the eggs went flying everywhere and broke.

"What's the moral of that story?" asks the teacher.
"Don't put all your eggs in one basket," says Kathy.
"Very good!" says the teacher.

Little Tammy tells how they had a dozen eggs once, but when they hatched, there were only ten live chicks. She said the moral of that story was, "Don't count your chickens before they hatch!"

"That's a fine example," says the teacher. "Little Johnny, I believe you had your hand up next!"

"Yes, Ma'am!" says Johnny. "My daddy told me my Aunt Karen was a flight engineer in Desert Storm, and her plane got hit. She had to bail out over enemy territory, and all she had was a bottle of whiskey, a machine gun, and a machete. She drank the whiskey on the way down, so it wouldn't break, and then she landed in the middle of a hundred enemy soldiers. She killed seventy of them with the machine gun before she ran out of bullets. Then, she killed twenty more with the machete before the blade broke off. Finally, she killed the last ten with her bare hands.

"Good heavens!" says the horrified teacher. "What did your daddy tell you was the moral of that terrible story?"

"Stay the heck away from Aunt Karen when she's been drinking!"

Old Friends

Two elderly ladies had been friends for many decades. Over the years, they had shared all kinds of activities and adventures. Lately, their activities had been limited to meet a few times a week to play cards. One day, they were playing cards when one looked at the other and said, "Now, don't get mad at me . . . I know we've been friends for a long time . . . but I just can't think of your name! I've thought and thought, but I can't remember it. Please tell me what our name is!"

Her friend glares at her. For at least three minutes she just stares and glares at her. Finally, she says, "How soon do you need to know?"

Honey Hole

Pa tells a story that happened to him during this spring's mushroom season. He says he grabbed a couple of breadsacks and walked up towards Needmore Hollow to his favorite "honey hole," hoping to find a bunch of mushrooms for his and Ma's supper.

Just as he got to the edge of the woods, he notices two men sitting on a deer stand just above Pa's "honey holes." He also notices that they are Yankees, so he says, "Hey, guys, what are you doing up there?" (Translated means, "Hey, y'all. What ch'all doin'?") They are both wearing hunter orange. One is holding a fancy rod and reel and the other has an over and under shotgun.

"We are going to get some dry land fish," says one. "Yes, sir!" says the other. We're going to snag them or shoot them."

"Well," says Pa. "They won't come in unless the ground is really clean. I'll just tidy up a little around here." Pa goes around the area picking up a big mess of morels in his bread sacks and then waves goodbye to the two hunters. "Happy hunting!" he says as he goes home.

The New Driver

A new immigrant was coasting down the interstate on the first day of his new job as a taxi driver when suddenly his phone rang. It was his boss on the phone, urgently warning him, "Nomoham, I just heard on the news that there's a car going the wrong way on the interstate. Please be careful!" "You don't have to tell me," says Nomoham. "It's not just one car. It's hundreds of them!"

Little Lady

A little old lady is going up and down the halls of the nursing home. As she walks be, she flips up the hem of her nightgown and says, "Supersex."

She walks up to an elderly man in a wheelchair. Flipping her gown at him, she says, "Supersex!"

He sits silently for a moment or two and finally answers, "I'll take the soup!"

INDICTMENTS

Reed is also charged with felonies, fleeing or evading police (motor vehicle) and wanton endangerment, first degree when Constable Danny Conrad attempted a traffic stop on Reed, on December 13, 2013. The fleeing and wanton endangerment charges are Class D felonies.

Justin Shearer, 26, of Old Fox Road and MiChael Miller, 26, of Jacqueline Court were named as co-defendants in the March 7, 2013 burglary at 523 Cantrell Street in Irvine.

Shearer was indicted for second degree burglary, receiving stolen property under $10,000, and criminal possession of a forged instrument.

Miller was indicted for facilitation to burglary, second degree, a misdemeanor, receiving stolen property under $10,000, and forgery, second degree, both felonies.
