Maudie's Naughties

Parking

A policeman passes a parking lot around midnight and notices a couple inside a parked car. He stops to investigate and sees a man in the driver's seat and a young lady sitting in the backseat, quietly reading a magazine.

The officer knocks on the driver's window and asks what's going on?

"Listening to music," the guy says.

Pointing toward the young lady in the backseat, the officer asks, "And what's she doing?"

"Reading a magazine, of course."

"How old are you?" asks the officer.

"I'm 28."

"And how old is she?"

The guy looks at his watch and says, "Well, in 11 minutes she'll be 18."

Weight Watchers

Mrs. Jones, who is a little on the chubby side, has been attending weight-watchers meetings but has missed a couple. She encounters a classmate on the street who inquires as to where she has been.

"Well," she says. "My husband was the one who insisted I come to those meetings because he would rather be romantic with a woman with a trim figure."

"Well," the lady replies, "What's wrong with that?"

"He was visiting her while I was at the meetings."

College Degrees

An accountant, a lawyer, and a cowboy are standing side-by-side at adjacent urinals.

The accountant finishes, zips up, the scrubs his hands clear up to his elbows using about 20 paper towels. He turns and says, "University of Michigan. They taught us to be clean."

The lawyer finishes, zips up, and quickly wets the tips of his fingers, grabs one paper towel and comments, "UCLA . . . they taught us to be environmentally conscious."

The cowboy zips up, walks out, saying, "University of Texas; they taught us not to pee on our hands."

Newlyweds

A young bride's mother had some old-fashioned ideas of marriage, and passes them on to her daughter.

"Never let your husband see you in the nude," she advised. "You should always wear something."

"Yes, mother," replies the obedient girl.

Two weeks after the wedding, the girl and her brand-new husband are preparing to retire when the guy asks, "Dear, has there ever been any problems in your family?"

"Not that I know of," she answers. "Why?"

"Well, we've been married for two weeks now and every night you've worn that silly hat to bed."

Guess Your Age

Three old ornery grandmas are sitting on a bench outside a nursing home when an old man walks by. One of the grandmas says, "I'll bet we can tell how old you are."

The old man replies, "There ain't no way."

"Sure we can," says another of the grannies. "Just pull your pants down and we can tell your exact age."

So of course, he does what they ask.

The grandmas stare at him for awhile, and finally, after about 10 minutes, they all pipe up and say, "You're 84 years old!"

The old man is stunned. "Amazing! How did you guess that?"

The ornery old grandmas laugh, slapping their knees and grinning from ear to ear; all three happily yell in unison, "You told us yesterday."

Horrible Dream

"Doc," says the young man lying down on the couch, "You've got to help me! Every night I have the same horrible dream. I'm lying in bed when all of a sudden five women rush in and start tearing off my clothes."

The psychiatrist nods, "And what do you do?"

"I push them away."

"I see. What do you want me to do?"

The patient implores, "Break my arms."

Reflections

A husband and wife are getting ready for bed. The wife is standing in front of a full length mirror taking a hard look at herself. "You know love" she says, "I look in the mirror and I see an old woman. My face is all wrinkled, I'm sagging badly and my rump is hanging out a mile. I've got fat legs and my arms are all flabby."

She then turns to her husband and says, "Tell me something positive to make me feel better about myself."

He thinks about it for a bit and then says, "Well . . . there's nothing wrong with your eyesight."

Father to Son Talk

A father speaks to his pre-teen son, "It's time we had a little talk, my son. Soon, you will have urges and feelings you've never had before. Your heart will pound and your hands will sweat. You won't be able to think of anything else. . . but don't worry, it's perfectly normal . . . it's called golf!"

Eastern Kentucky University Division of Public Relations

Upward Bound Opens Pathway To College For Estill Students

One hundred twenty-one high school students in seven counties near Eastern Kentucky University are Upward Bound, thanks to a federally funded program celebrating its 50th anniversary this year.

Estill County participants this year are Katie Crabtree, Jodie Culton, MaKayla Henry, Ashley Puckett and Nick Puckett.

The Upward Bound program at ECU provides a broad array of academic and support services and enrichment programs designed to help qualifying students who are motivated to complete high school and enroll in and graduate from colleges or universities.

Ninth- through 12th-graders from Casey, Estill, Jackson, Lee, Lincoln, Powell and Wolfe counties participate in academic workshops, tutoring and enrichment experiences in their home counties and at ECU during the academic year and during a six-week academic residential program on ECU's Richmond campus in the summer.

They also benefit from:

- assistance with the application process for financial aid.

- help with time management, study skills and decision making.

- educational field trips and cultural events.

- year-round career, academic and financial literacy planning.

The summer program strengthens the students' knowledge in such areas as English literature and composition, mathematics, science, Latin, Spanish, drama, history and financial literacy. A five-year ECU Upward Bound profile indicated that 84 percent of students enrolled achieved proficiency in reading/language arts and math. Then, when a student graduates from high school, Upward Bound continues to monitor the students until they complete their post-secondary education.

One graduate of the program at Eastern is Keven McQueen, of Berea, now a lecturer in the University's Department of English and author of 13 books. McQueen was in the program

1983-84 and went on to earn a bachelor's degree at Berea College and a master's degree at ECU.

He remembers an "encouraging" English teacher "at a time when I needed some encouragement," as well as all the "fantastic" educational and cultural trips.

Karen Lynn, of Richmond, now a writer/editor in ECU's Division of Public Relations, said living on campus gave her "firsthand knowledge of what life on a college campus could be like, and made it seem much easier to attain."

The Casey County High School graduate especially remembers the friendships formed and all the shared events - from bus trips to campus dances. "I still keep in touch with many of my friends from the program."

She also saw the ocean for the first time during an Upward Bound trip to Daytona Beach. "The memory of standing on shore and feeling the waves hit my feet for the first time always makes me grateful for the opportunities I had with the program."

Lynn, who was in the program 1980-82 and graduated from ECU in 1986, said Upward Bound "certainly helped make it easier to begin my college education and offered me a comfortable resource when I had questions. I also think it affected my decision to attend Eastern instead of other colleges. It already felt like home."

ECU's Upward Bound program is currently accepting applications. For more information about Upward Bound at ECU, visit www.upwardbound.eku.edu or call Director Tamara Stewart at 859-622-1080.

Upward Bound is one of four federally funded TRiO programs at ECU, joining Educational Talent Search, Student Support Services/NOVA and the McNair Scholars Program. The national program began as part of President Lyndon B. Johnson's War on Poverty to help underrepresented, first-generation students pursue a college education.
