

Annalyse Day dressed as a railroader for Saturday's parade. She and her mother, Emma, passed out railroad whistles to all the children in the parade.

The Ladies Auxiliary of American Legion Post #79 prepared a home cooked meal Thursday for veterans who are hospitalized at the Lexington VA Hospital. The Ladies Auxiliary began cooking these meals back in 1989, so this was their 25th year. Thursday's menu included chicken and dumplings, dressing, mashed potatoes, corn, green beans, other side dishes, and many desserts. The veterans take meals to other veterans who are unable to come back with them. Someone even donated about five pounds of sliced bologna for the veterans to take back with them. Pictured in the kitchen, left to right, are: Jessica Holton, Linda Webb, Clara Lynch, Martha Louise Neal, Renie Bell, Mimi Sparks Tucker, and Lisa Cooper.

Elliott Raider rode an antique toy tractor in Saturday's Railroad Festival parade.

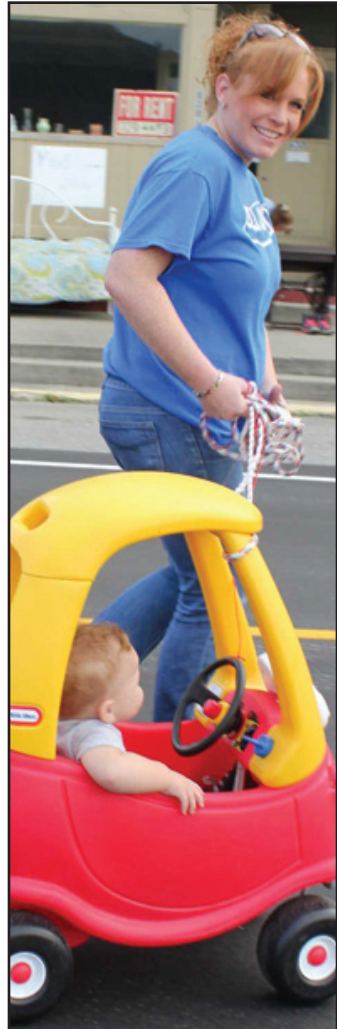

Free hayrides were given for the first time at the festival.

There were also free train rides again at this year's festival.
