New Programs Help Farmers Manage Risk
U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has unveiled highly anticipated new programs to help farmers better manage risk, ushering in one of the most significant reforms to United States farm programs in decades. The new programs, Agricultural Risk Coverage (ARC) and Price Loss Coverage (PLC), are cornerstones of the commodity farm safety net programs in the 2014 Farm Bill, legislation that ended direct payments. Both programs offer farmers protection when market forces cause substantial drops in crop prices and/or revenues. Producers will have through early spring of 2015 to select which program works best for their businesses. Farm owners may now begin visiting their local Farm Service Agency (FSA) offices if they want to update their yield history and/or reallocate base acres, the first step before choosing which new program best serves their risk management needs. Letters sent this summer enabled farm owners and producers to analyze their crop planting history in order to decide whether to keep their base acres or reallocate them according to recent plantings. For more information, visit www.usda.gov/farmland. USDA is an equal opportunity provider, employer and lender.
