Jess D. Wilson, 96

Jess D. Wilson

Jess D. Wilson of Possum Trot, Clay County, Kentucky, a former writer for many years for Jackson Energy's "Rural Kentucky," died Saturday, November 1, 2014.

He was born August 8, 1918, in Clay County, Kentucky, the first of six children of Pleas and Rebecca Pigg Wilson. He attended Foundation School at Berea College, graduated from Tyner High School in 1938, and continued his education at Eastern State Teachers' College (now EKV) in Richmond. During World War II, he worked for the United States Air Force as a master aircraft sheet-metal mechanic.

He started his career at Jackson County Rural Electric Coop by cutting right-of-way, then moved up to wiring inspector, operations engineer and later into public relations. For 32 years, he was responsible for writing the monthly newsletter. His readers were most interested in stories about themselves and their ancestors. "It Happened Here" became something that folks reading The Rural Kentuckian in Estill, Lee, Owsley, Laurel, Rockcastle, Jackson, and Clay counties expected to see. Soon people from other places began to write him about their kinfolks. His books based on these columns received nationwide distribution and two are still in print. A few of his many organizational affiliations include The Council for the Southern Mountains, Kiwanis, Berea College, and the Clay County Genealogical and Historical Society, where his papers now reside. As a spokesman for the Appalachian area, he testified before the US Senate during the 1960's War on Poverty. In 1983, he and his wife, Ruth, retired to a Clay County farm, Possum Trot, which became, with the help and labor of many friends, a loved camp and retreat representing the best of local history and culture.

He leaves his wife of 73 years: Ruth Hygema Wilson; three daughters: E. Gail Chandler, T. Sammie Wakefield, and Rebecca Joy Wilson; two son-in-laws: Curtis Chandler and Richard Wakefield; three granddaughters: Tana Allen, Tara Chandler and Esther Wakefield; two great grandsons; his brother: Raymond Wilson; and a wealth of friends, nieces and nephews; and not to be forgotten, those children of his spirit who know who they are.

The funeral service was held at 11:00 a.m., Thursday, November 6 at Lakes McKee Funeral Home with Bro. Sam Grigsby and Bro. Roger Williams officiating.

Donations may be given to the Clay County Historical and Genealogical Society, Box 394, Manchester, KY.
