"YOU MISSED IT... HE TOOK HIS FIRST STEP AND THEN IMMEDIATELY DECLARED FOR THE NBA DRAFT."

Maudie's Naughties

Fishing

It was raining hard and a big puddle had formed in front of the little Scottish pub.
An old man stood beside the puddle holding a stick with a string on the end and jiggled it up and down in the water.
A curious gentleman asked what he was doing.
'Fishing,' replied the old man.
'Poor old fool' thought the gentleman, so he invited the old man to have a drink in the pub.
Feeling he should start some conversation while they were sipping their whisky, the gentleman asked,
'And how many have you caught today?'
'You're the eighth.'

Different Perspective

An Irvine woman is shopping in Lexington and decides to sit down on a bench to rest before going to the next store. A beggar comes up to her and says, "Hey, Sugar. How's about us going for a walk together?"
"How dare you," says the woman. "I'm not one of your cheap pickups."
"Well," says the beggar. "Then what are you doing in my bed?"

Teacher's Birthday

It's the kindergarten teacher's birthday and the students decide that they will each buy their teacher a gift.
The first little boy, whose parents own a florist shop, gives her a present. She holds it and says "I guess that it is flowers?"
"How did you guess?", asks the little boy. She laughs and thanks him.
The second little boy, whose parents own a candy store, gives her a present. She holds it and says, "I guess that it is some candy?"
"How did you guess?" asks the little boy. She again laughs and thanks him also.
The third little girl, whose parents own a beverage store, gives her a box which is leaking. The teacher touches the liquid with her finger and tastes it. "Mmmmm, is it wine?" she asks.
"No," says the little girl.
So she tastes it again. "Is it champagne?" she asks . . .
"No" replies the little girl, "It's a puppy . . ."

Census Taker

"How many children do you have?"
"Fo."
"May I have their names, please?"
"Eenie, Meenie, Minie and George."
"Okay, that's fine. But may I ask why you named your fourth child George?"
"Because we didn't want any Mo!"

Junior Goes to College

Junior goes off to college but halfway through the semester, he discovers that he has squandered all the money that Ma and Pa has given him, down at the pool hall. He gets an idea, so he calls home and says, "Pa! You wouldn't believe it, but they've got a program down here where they can teach a dog to talk. Wouldn't it be wonderful if old Sam could learn how to talk?"
"That's amazing," says Pa. "But how much does it cost?"
"It's only a $1,000," says Junior. "But it's guaranteed!"
So Pa puts Sam on the next produce truck leaving town, along with $1,000, headed for college.
Pretty soon the money runs out, so Junior calls home and says, "Pa, that Sam is talking up a storm. They say he's the quickest learner they ever had, and now they want to teach him to read. But it will cost another $1,000."
So Pa gives the produce man $1,000 to give to Junior at college to teach Sam how to read.
Near the end of the semester, the money is all gone, and Sam can't read or write, and Junior doesn't know what to tell Ma and Pa. When he gets back home, Pa is waiting for the produce truck and is anxious to see his dog that can talk and read.
But old Sam is not on the truck, so Pa starts asking Junior where the dog is.
"Well," says Junior. "I was getting ready to come home this morning. Sam was reading the morning paper to me while I took a shower. Then all of a sudden he starts telling me that you've been hanging around a lot at that young widow's down the road. What else could I do, Pa? I had to protect your honor. I got rid of that lying dog!"
"Good boy," says Pa. "Good boy!"
