Stickeler's Answer

Stickelers Answer

The answer is 426 cubes. The cubes without any paint on them would number 3 x 7 x 14, or 294 cubes at the core of the block. 720-294 = 426 cubes with paint on at least one face. There always are two fewer cubes on each dimension (3, 7 and 14 compared with the original dimensions of 5, 9 and 16) that are buried inside. Stickeler's Puzzle on Page 10

My, ain't it funny, how time slips away, so the old song goes, things change, and sometimes not for the better.

My first trip from the far southeastern tip of the Commonwealth, to the Cumberland National forest, in Pulaski County, happened for me in 1960. They have since renamed the Cumberland, to the Daniel Boone National forest.

We would load up in three trucks, camping gear in tow, to hunt for the week-end for squirrel, and at night for rattlesnake. We could stay and hunt Letcher County, climb hills all day long, and kill our limit, or go to the Daniel Boone, walk on logging roads, and kill six squirrels of the morning, and six of the evening; plus there was fox and black squirrels, unheard of in the mountains. We never quite figured out the Department of Fish and Wildlife's guidelines of six squirrels a day or twelve in procession, I still don't know.

Although we hauled squirrels back by the coolers-full, my favorite hunting was from about nine at night 'till midnight. That is when we would load in the back of the pickup, three of us across, and head out on the sandy logging roads, hunting snakes. All three trucks in different directions. It has been years since I have heard of anyone doing this hunt. Those days it was nothing to bring back three rattlesnakes, and a truck load of copperheads, for each truck load of hunters.

When the lights of the truck hit the snake crawling across the road, the shooting would start. I think now, it is even against the law, to shoot on those roads, but then again, isn't everything against the law these days? We hunted around Mount Victory, right on the Rockcastle River, on the Pulaski County side. Fishing was always great on the Rockcastle, and we made a really fun trip from our time there.

Our group for the biggest part, has gone on to wait for us to hunt again across the "Silent River". My last trip to hunt Mount Victory was in the fall of 1999, and our group had gone from over 30, to just 4 of us. Yep, time has a way of slipping away, but we all still have our memories.

Online security can help protect you from cyber thieves

The theft of credit and debit card numbers should make everyone, including students, more careful about protecting their money from cyber thieves. The following measures can help, according to the Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority (KHEAA).

Never provide your Social Security, bank account or credit card number in response to a phone call, text or email. If you get a text or email from a bank or company, don't click on any link in the message. It may lead you to a fake site run by thieves hoping you'll enter personal information, or it may install spyware or malware on your phone or computer. Instead, sign in through the website you normally use when you do business with that firm.

Never provide bank, credit card or other sensitive data on a website that doesn't explain how your information will be protected, including encryption to safely transmit and store data.

When you use your ATM or debit card, make sure no one can see your PIN. Check ATMs for obvious signs of tampering or for a skimming device.

Install a free or low-cost firewall to stop intruders from gaining remote access to your devices. Download and update security patches offered by your system and software vendors to correct weaknesses that could be exploited.

KHEAA is the agency that administers the state's grant and scholarship programs, including the Kentucky Educational Excellence Scholarship (KEES). The agency also provides financial literacy videos at http://itsmoney.kheaa. com and free copies of "It's Money, Baby," a guide to financial literacy, to Kentucky schools and residents upon request at publications@kheaa. com.

Many of KHEAA's student aid programs are funded by Kentucky Lottery receipts.
