I had a list. A beautiful, handwritten, detailed list of all the things I was going to do while Corky was away at his conference. It was so pretty I almost wanted to frame it! On the list were household chores (I had to make it look good) but mostly there were the names of my favorite haunts that I wanted to visit. Little, out of the way places that I love to wander through and get great decorating ideas. Corky refers to this as "creating a honey-do list", I disagree. Sometimes you have what it takes to create a different look, you just need a different look to create what you want! Also on the list

Being Taken Care When Sick Is Better Than Any List

was all the wonderful places I wanted to eat. Corky and I enjoy dining out and most of the time we can agree on a restaurant, but there are places I like that he doesn't, so I had my list ready of where to dine during his week long absence.

I also planned to catch up on some correspondence. Yes, I'm old fashioned but I do love sending and receiving letters. My stationary and favorite pens were assembled on my writing desk along with festive stamps and stickers for decorating the envelopes. I was looking forward to Corky's conference as much as he was! I could nap when I wanted, eat what I wanted, stay up as late or go to bed as early as I wanted. While he enjoyed the Florida sunshine, I planned to enjoy the mountain air and put the house on hold for a week. Ahhh, I couldn't wait!

After dropping Corky at the airport on Sunday, I began my adventure. I browsed book stores, stopped by a grocery and picked up some junk food, ate ice cream and ventured home long after dark. I watched HGTV and held the remote all by myself! It was bliss! And this was only the first day! There were five more days to look forward to. I drifted off to sleep with visions of Hot Fudge Cake for supper! All these wonderful plans, unfortunately I failed to tell my IMMUNE system about them!

Monday morning was a fog! Trying to wake up was like swimming frantically for the surface of a lake. My throat was burning, and I do mean BURNING; my head ached, I couldn't breathe, what on earth was wrong with me?! I crawled out of bed and managed to make it to the shower, surely the hot steam would open up my sinuses and I could get to work on time. I gargled warm salt water as I applied makeup, dug through the cabinet for ANYTHING to make this throat stop hurting and gave up on wearing contacts because my eyes were weepy. Great, there goes my list!

Tuesday was even worse and I began a round of antibiotics, by Thursday I was dying, that's all there was too it, I was dying! Corky would call to check in on me and I could hear the ocean waves in the background...it made me sick! He was enjoying the sand and surf of the conference and I was filling up garbage cans with used Kleenex! Back to the Doctor for two big ol' shots and more antibiotics. This thing had to give, I was running out of time and my beautiful, handwritten, detailed list of things to do was getting covered up by Kleenex on my desk! Still sick, Saturday arrived and I headed for the airport to pick Corky up. My head was woozy and I had a fever, but I drove on, anxious to see my husband and hear about his trip.

"Wow, you don't look so good", he said as he hugged me at baggage claims. "Yeah, I don't feel so good either", I replied, and we headed back to Irvine. "You been sick all week?", he asked. "Yup, began Monday morning and I've been sick ever since", I said blowing my nose, AGAIN! I couldn't help but admire the great tan he'd come home with as I listened to all the things he learned at the UAW conference. They'd had a wonderful time and managed to enjoy the sun in between seminars, but I was certainly glad he was home. It's no fun being sick by yourself. "Why don't you go lay down and I'll fix us a bite of supper?", he said as he began unpacking. He didn't have to tell me twice! I might not have gotten to my list, but being taken care of while you're sick, that's better than ANY list I could think up!

Attorneys may now file court cases electronically at Estill Circuit Court

Attorneys with court cases in 12 more Kentucky counties may now file them without making a trip to a courthouse. The Administrative Office of the Courts began offering electronic case filing today in Breathitt, Clay, Estill, Harlan, Jackson, Lee, Leslie, Letcher, Owsley, Perry, Powell and Wolfe counties. eFiling is available 24/7 and attorneys with access may file case documents electronically in any of the 106 Kentucky counties that offer the program. Since the start of eFiling in December 2013, more than 930 attorneys and other users, such as sheriffs, have filed more than 41,000 documents electronically. Attorneys are putting the program to work, filing case documents during normal business hours, after hours and on weekends. The AOC plans to have the program available in all 120 Kentucky counties by the end of 2015. "eFiling is ushering in an important new era for the Kentucky justice system," Chief Justice of Kentucky John D. Minton Jr. said. "Gone will be the days of attorneys on deadline rushing to file a motion before the courthouse closes. Now they can take care of business for their clients anywhere and anytime. I appreciate the local judges and circuit court clerks who have embraced these changes and worked with the AOC to implement eFiling in their counties. The state's entire legal system will become more efficient as we process cases electronically." A map of the statewide implementation schedule is available at <http://courts.ky.gov/efiling/Documents/efiling2015map.pdf>.

Marcum & Wallace "Pink Paradise Luau"

As the season of summer comes to an end, the Marcum & Wallace Hospital Foundation has plans to bring the island-vibe into the season of fall. Make plans to attend the "Pink Paradise Luau" presented by Citizens Guaranty Bank at the Estill County Golf Club on Saturday, October 10. The golf course grounds will be transformed into a paradise and guests will receive an island-style welcome at 6 p.m. Enjoy the music of the Caribbean Blues Band, delight in a fantastic dinner with traditional pig roast and luau foods, and have fun with caricatures, limbo and more! Participate in an exciting live and silent auction with bidding on an array of experiences and items...including a week in a Miami ocean-front condo, a weekend getaway at a cabin, UK tickets, theme baskets and more! This casual event invites you to dress in your island attire; Hawaiian shirts and pink are best. The Pink Paradise Luau will support the campaign for 3D mammography at Marcum & Wallace Hospital. All proceeds will provide funding to support the women of our region by getting access to state-of-the-art technology for breast cancer detection. The luau will also honor breast cancer survivors and those who lost the fight. Tickets are $50 each or you can purchase a table of eight for $400. Corporate and individual sponsorship opportunities are available. Sponsorships must be secured by September 16 and event tickets must be purchased before October 1. For more information or to purchase tickets, call Arielle (606)726-2119 or arestes@mercy.com. Event details available on the Marcum & Wallace Hospital Facebook page or www.marcumandwallace.org.
