Councilwoman Tina Johnson stated that some of Ravenna's streets were in poor shape.

Councilman Terry Johnson asked the council to look at buying a new cruiser.

He was told the cruisers were running okay now. Ricky Williams said that James Gross was bringing his cruiser to be looked at on Tuesday to see if it had transmission problems. It was also not heating up.

Police Chief Ken White said if the city gets another cruiser, then he would like for it to be all wheel drive to be used in the winter. Ravenna has some hilly streets. White's report for January was 61 activities.
