

Calling YOU To Supper

casions to keep us from harm but at home, Rankin is at Corky's feet and Hooch is usually in my lap! Not that he's a lap dog in ANY form of the word but he longs to be one. When they first began to come in the house, their beds were located at the back of the kitchen, next to the back door. Over time, they've inched their way into the living room. So much so that new beds were purchased for their lounging pleasure. I wish I were kidding, but I'm not!

The Dynamic Duo keeps close tabs on the farm, I'm never afraid with them around. They let me know when anything is out of the ordinary at our house as well as my Mom's, my sister's or Mamaw and Sissy's house. I've watched them chase many visitors back into their car and don't EVEN think about coming around after dark, it's a scary thing! Yes, I love our dogs and I'm so thankful they are in our lives, I can't help but feel there is a reason for both of them finding us the way they did. Who knows, God puts people where He wants them, why wouldn't He do the same with pets? For healing, for comfort, companionship and protection, Hooch and Rankin have given it all to me.

Take last night for example, when I went to the door to call them in for supper. Rankin raced to the porch, then darted back into the darkness of the front yard, all the while 'talking' to me. "Come on Rankin, supper is ready", I called to him. He still barked and talked to me from the far corner of the yard. Hooch jumped up on the porch in his clumsy, carefree way, scooting the rug as he tried to regain his footing, then he too darted into the yard. Both of them were acting strange since I'd never had trouble getting them to come to supper before. I called again, both dogs did the same thing! I began to get nervous and slipped back in the house and called for Corky to check it out. In the past, the team had protected me from coyotes in the yard and with them acting strangely, I felt the hair stand up on my neck. Corky grabbed a flashlight and as he opened the door, Hooch pushed his way into the house. Rankin still stood barking in the front yard and Corky scanned the yard with the bright light.

"What is it buddy?", Corky called out as he crossed the yard. Rankin still continued to bark towards the house. In a few minutes, I could hear Corky's laughter above Rankin's barks. "Is everything okay?", I hollered.

"Everything's okay", he managed between laughs, "it seems Rankin was calling YOU to supper" and he continued to laugh.

"What do you mean?", I questioned, joining him in the yard.

"All this noise seems to be an effort to call you to supper OR protect you from a dangerous piece of...pepperoni pizza!"

And with that, Rankin promptly sat down and I could swear I saw him smile! See? Aren't they just the best dogs ever?!!

I tend to brag on our dogs just like they were our children! I can't help it, both dogs are so loving, loyal, protective and smart, they're better to me than some friends! Hooch and Rankin don't question my decisions, even if I make a bad one, the boys just follow my lead.

They are so accustomed to going places with us that I have to battle for position when I'm getting in the truck for work. They think since the door is open it must mean we're going for ice cream or the lake or just a drive in the country. We discuss this Monday through Friday, "I'm going to work, you stay here and protect the house. I'll be back soon." They both look at me with their heads cocked to the side and that one ear perked up as if they truly understand what I'm saying. I've said it before, we are now THOSE kind of people and we never, even, saw it coming!

Rankin tends to protect Corky, while Hooch has my back. Both have jumped into action on different oc-

Library Begins New Whodunit Book Club

Love a good Mystery? Then the Whodunit Book Club might be just the thing for you. Estill County Public Library is trying something new. In addition to the afternoon book club that meets once a month at the library, we will be starting a new mystery & detective book club that meets at a local restaurant in the early evening.

Whether you like gritty crime fiction, cleverly written suspense stories, or cozy mysteries, you'll find a warm welcome and fellow mystery fans at The Whodunit Book Club.

Bring the mystery that you are currently reading to our first meeting on Monday, March 14 at Eagle's Roost, 214 Main Street, Irvine. Book club starts at 5:00 p.m. with an informal meet and greet, and discussions begin at 5:30.

The library will provide appetizers for each meeting, but attendees will be responsible for their own drinks. There is no charge to join The Whodunit Book Club.

For more information about meeting time and location, call Estill County Public Library at 723-3030, or Eagle's Roost at 717-0222. You can also email the library at estillcolibrary@gmail.com with questions, comments, or suggestions.

Profane and Blasphemous Seducers

²¹For it had been better for them not to have known the way of righteousness, than, after they have known it, to turn from the holy commandment delivered unto them. ²²But it is happened unto them according to the true proverb, The dog is turned to his own vomit again; and the sow that was washed to her wallowing in the mire.
