A recent report from Becker's Hospital Review named Marcum & Wallace Memorial Hospital (MWMH) as the sixth cleanest hospital in Kentucky. The data for the report was pulled from the Centers for Medicaid & Medicare Hospital Compare site that compiles patient satisfaction surveys. They surveys showed MWMH has above the state and national average rate for patients reporting their room and bathroom were "always" clean.

According to the report, Kentucky's average rate for patients reporting their room and bathroom were "always" clean is 75 percent. The national average is 74 percent. MWMH patient satisfaction surveys reported 85 percent.

"Our hospitality team really takes pride in their work and recognizes the imporance of cleanliness to our patients," said Tina Hix, MWMH Hospitality and Infection Control Director. "A clean room truly impacts the patient experience...it helps prevent the spread of disease and makes a difference for how the patient and their family view the hospital."

"This recognition means even more because it is feedback from our patients...the individuals who are why we do what we do," said Susan Starling, MWMH President & CEO. "Cleanliness counts during the patient experience and our Hospitality Team works hard to set is a part from other healthcare facilities."

Fish Fry

I think back to happier times when my Mother and Dad were still living; when we enjoyed many family get-togethers, birthday and anniversary parties and especially the fish fry.

Bob and my nephew, Chris loved to go fishing together; and since we worked at the army depot Bob fished there often. They always came home with a mess of fish every time. All summer they caught fish and we would freeze them; then in September we would have a big family fish fry.

Mom would invite all the extended family; cousins, aunts and uncles to the fish fry. The porch and yard would be full of people. What a great time we had sharing stories and memories of fishing, hunting or talking about our gardens and crops. Sadly, most of the extended family are no longer with us.

Mom would prepare sides of commmeal hush puppies, fried potatoes and creamy coleslaw. Everyone brought a dish of their choice; so we had a real feast. We usually finished off the meal with a huge peach cobbler.

Our cousin, A.J. would bring his fish cooker to deep fry the Cat fish, Bass, and Bluegill. He and Bob did most of the cooking outside on the carport. Bob prepared a special concoction coating for the fish; something he came up with; a secret recipe. I do know he used Kentucky Kernel seasoning mix along with some secret ingredients.

Mom and I made the hush puppies, slaw and fried potatoes. No one could fry potatoes like my Mother. To this day I can't make them like she did. I guess we all think our Mothers were the best cooks ever; I certainly thought my mother was the best.

After all the food was prepared; we gathered around the tables and the food was blessed and we dug in. Everything was delicious. We ate till we could hardly move.

After the meal, everyone visited and talked with each other. We had family time, unlike now days. My, how times have changed. Everyone is on such a tight schedule we never have time to relax and visit with each other. Everyone goes to Wal-Mart or ball practice of some sort. I wish stores were closed on Sunday. Perhaps more people would have family time and attend church.

At the end of day we took pictures and said our good byes and departed after a full day of eating, visiting, and fellowship.
