

And They Think We're Crazy?

Linville Dunaway, Corinth Christian Church

The front page of the Lexington paper for July 13 says that schools have been warned against trips to the ark at the Creation Museum. There are some who think that the children may be exposed to religious beliefs. One item mentioned was the believers who think that the earth is only about six thousand years old, instead of billions of years old. It is sad when you think that our tax dollars are spent teaching our children the false doctrine of atheism.

The bible tells of those who think that they are smart, but are really fools. Psalms 14:1, "The fool hath said in his heart, There is no God." Really? Someone decided that they didn't like the idea of God so he, and others, say that we are supposed to go along with it. I don't claim to be an intellect, but I am smart enough to know that the world, you and me, and everything didn't just happen. We are created in the image of God and are a part of his creation. To deny the Lord is not going to change the fact that he is God. One "scientist" was quoted years ago as saying, that he liked the theory of evolution because it taught that man was ascending while the bible taught the fall of man.

Romans 1:22, "Professing themselves to be wise, they became fools." Man looks at a bone and thinks that he can tell all about it. Years ago my wife read a book about dinosaurs to a small grandchild. I couldn't help but laugh as she read that they might have done this or that, and that they probably did something or the other, and that they might have acted one way or another.

Facts? I don't think so. These so called smart people have bigger imaginations than a child with a cardboard box. Imagine what you want, but don't call it facts.

The weather men get it right more often than the evolutionist. They said that nothing could live without light, but had to change the story when various life forms were found thousands of feet down on the ocean floor in total darkness. Then how about the various animals that they said became extinct millions of years ago? Some have been found alive and well, oops, wrong again, Mr. Evolutionist.

Someone said that they could tell how many light years away a star was by its color. Really, and how did they come up with that? Am I really supposed to believe it because some smart person said it? Well, call me crazy, but I don't believe it at all. I believe God and take what he says, but I don't believe something, just because a group of men get together and claim to know things that they have no way to prove. 1 Timothy 6:20-21, "O Timothy, keep that which is committed to thy trust, avoiding profane and vain babblings, and oppositions of science falsely so called: Which some professing have erred concerning the faith. Grace be with thee. Amen."

So many of their scientific theories that have been put forth are really too foolish to merit discussion. For instance, whales were once a dog like animal that decided to go live in the sea. And what about the one where dinosaurs became birds, such as the Thanksgiving turkey? Yeah, right, I'm glad that I'm not smart enough to accept such foolishness. I had rather be a fool for Christ and live for him than to be well thought of by the world. What do you believe?
