The Vote!

I will let it be known up front I am a Christian Conservative. I use the Bible as my guide on whom I will vote for. When it comes to voting, I vote my way. I don't care how my Grandad voted. I think for myself.

Our local election is just around the corner. There are some great candidates on both sides. On election day I might find myself having a hard time deciding. In the primary I had a democrat sign in my yard. I couldn't help them in the primary. I even had people say, I am surprised you have a democrat sign. My reply, this candidate is a super person and will do what he says. I vote for the person.

I say all this to make a point. Don't get caught up in the party. Get caught up in, 'does the candidate line up with your beliefs.' Don't vote for someone just because that's the way you have always voted.

I have watched the Supreme Court seat battle unfold. I have listened to every second of testimony. I think we have reached a point where no more good people will run for office. Why would a good person want to go through this kind of stuff? Information sat on until the last second. Media who just throw out non-verified stories that destroy. It's kind of scary how allegations can become true without any evidence.

On the national side of elections, I can't vote for anyone who thinks it's ok to kill unborn babies. I can't vote for someone who thinks it's ok for a man to use the girl's bathroom. I can't vote for anyone who wants to take my guns. If the person does not line up with the Bible I am not voting for them, local or national, republican or democrat.

Something that keeps coming to my mind on the Judge Kavanaugh deal. This whole time the left kept saying, if he gets supreme court seat Roe vs Wade could be overturned. I just wonder if the allegations would have surfaced if Judge Kavanaugh was ok with murdering babies? I just wonder if the media would have attacked if he was pro-choice?

This voting season I beg you not to vote for the party but vote for the person. Vote for the person whose beliefs are biblical. The R and D means nothing, but Jesus means everything.

Until next week, get out and enjoy God's creation!
