

Lady Engineers' Season Ends in District Opener

MIKE WISEMAN
Tribune Sportswriter

The Estill County Lady Engineers saw their season come to an end on Monday night as they dropped their first round game in the 56th District Tournament to Lee County, 68 -48. Estill's final season tally would be 11 wins - 17 losses.

The Lady Engineers would take an early three point lead when M. Hale's first three pointer would drop but a half dozen turnovers in the first eight minutes would be enough for Lee to take a double digit lead at the end of the first quarter.

The second quarter would see much of the same, unforced turnovers, foul trouble, and Lee's star, Hannah Kash at the charity stripe.

Estill would cut the lead to single digits several times but would still face a fifteen point halftime deficit, 36 -21.

With a second half uphill climb to get back into the game, Estill would have to play scrambling and aggressive defense which would lead to even more foul trouble for the already thin Lady Engineers. Estill would only be able to cut three points from the lead and with star Amy Brewer fouling out with over five minutes to play, the season's end was fast approaching.

Estill would finish it out with youth on the floor and look forward to next year as the final seconds ticked away.

Congrats on a great season Ladies!! Thanks for being a great Lady Engineer, Savannah Brewer!! Thanks for the support - Family and Fans for the 2017-18 Lady Engineers. GO BIG BLUE!!!

Engineers try to defend 56th District Title

MIKE WISEMAN
Tribune Sportswriter

The Estill County Engineers will try to defend their 56th District Championship as they open play on Tuesday night against host Lee County.

With large wins in the previous two matchups, the Engineers are almost assured a spot in the championship game and a trip to the 14th Regional Tournament.

But the Engineers would like more than just a trip to the tourney, they want a higher seed and a good draw in hopes for a Regional Title and a trip to the Sweet Sixteen State Championship.

Come out and support the Engineers in 56th District Action this week.

If the Engineers advance to the Championship game, it will be played on Friday night in Beattyville @ 7:00 pm. Good Luck Engineers!!! GO BIG BLUE!!!

Ken White for Estill County Sheriff

My name is Ken White and I am a candidate for Estill County Sheriff. One of the main reasons I want to be Sheriff is because I care about Estill County and the people in it. I want to make this county safe for all families to live in. I now have grandchildren that are going to grow up in Estill County and I want it to be a safe environment for them as well as your children.

After graduating from the police academy, I've worked many years in law enforcement including over 14 years as Chief of Police in Ravenna. I have been the chairman for the Estill County Toys for Tots program for 16 years, so I have been able to talk to numerous people throughout the years and have heard their concerns and complaints. I look forward to working with everyone to make any necessary changes.

REMEMBER: KEN WHITE ... NOT JUST A SHERIFF BUT YOUR FRIEND

Singer/Songwriter Sarah Beth Terry

Singer/Songwriter Sarah Beth Terry is whip smart, slap-your-grandma funny, completely fearless, unabashedly uninhibited and extraordinarily talented. Born and raised in Eastern Kentucky, far enough out in the country that they couldn't get cable, Sarah Beth began writing poems and lyrics at a very early age. Her Mother, a gifted poet, would send her outside with an egg timer and a pad of paper, and challenge her to write something, leaving Sarah Beth with an exceptionally adroit, clever way with words.

Sarah Beth left Kentucky at twenty-one with a thick accent, quick wit and dreams of making music. She made several trips to Nashville and reconnected with Jake Bonner, an old acquaintance from Kentucky, now a career military man. The two were married and soon moved to Fort Polk, Louisiana. It was there that Sarah Beth opened up a Music Studio offering instruction for aspiring artists, songwriters and musicians. The school was so successful, with up to 400 students, that when Jake got stationed in Italy for two years, she stayed in Louisiana to run it. Eventually, she trained her brother Dylan to take over the business -- which he continues to run -- in order to focus on her songwriting.

Crediting songwriter/musician/producer Bobby

Terry (no relation) artist/songwriter Anthony Smith with teaching her to formulate songs, she is reverential about Smith's album, If That Ain't Country (produced and engineered by Bobby Terry) and claims that it was an important turning point for her as a songwriter.

Ironically, Sarah Beth currently has an exclusive agreement with Bobby's publishing company, Three Hounds Music, and her first cut is a song she wrote with Anthony: "I Hate the Taste of Whiskey".

She has built-up an extensive song catalog because she is always writing. "It's an ongoing dialogue," she explains. "It's like a storm front, you can feel it building and once it hits there's no stopping it." Music isn't just what she does. It's who she is. "It's the era of the songwriter," says Sarah Beth "and I'm finally on the playing field!"

Sarah Beth accidentally stumbled upon her perfect writer retreat when she and Jake stopped for gas in the little town of Munfordville, KY. -- conveniently located in between Nashville and Ft. Knox -- and fell madly in love with a log cabin home that they rented that day. She writes on her front porch, early in the morning till late at night and the songs continue to flow. "I ended up where I started," says the self-branded "Queen Bee," "and it's right where I need to be."
