Magistrate candidates address roads, jobs, trash, and taxes

Continued from Page 1

Doug Dooley worked out of town at Bundy Tubing until it closed. He was transferred to Ohio.

"Thankfully, all roads lead back home," he stated.

He even took a part-time job at a service station before helping his in-laws build a successful business at Marcum's Auto Sales.

An opponent, Gary Robinson has been a self employed, local painter for 30 years.

"Some concerns are the budget, the landfill, the drug problem, and the park -- the need to clean it up for the county," stated Robinson.

Gerry Flannery, a former magistrates, wants to work for solutions to the trash.

He added that people do throw trash out their car windows, but some of it comes from trucks hauling it to the landfill.

Some of the trash along the river floats downstream from Eastern Kentucky.

District 3 candidates had a question about special taxing districts that was not understood until Librarian Kathy Watson explained what the special districts are. The school board, library, extension service, conservation service, ambulance service, and health department are the taxing districts in Estill County.

Holden Hardy said these districts bring a lot of great value to Estill County.

He said the library gives something for the youth to do with their library programs.

The final forum will be held this Thursday at 6 p.m. in the high school auditorium. Candidates for constable and the mayor of Irvine will be featured.

The forums are televised live, but the public is welcome at the auditorium.

Shelby Arthur displayed wreaths that she made at the Mt. Mushroom Festival. She also had woodcrafts in her booth which were made by her grandfather.

Dora "Honey" Henry and her sister Lucille Harrison enjoyed the parade at the corner of Court and Broadway.

Someone found a seat on the bench during the festival which says, "I (heart) Irvine, Ky."

Several plea guilty on Rocket Docket; 2 receive sentences of incarceration

Some Estill Countians have waived indictments on April 19 to receive sentencing in the Rocket Docket program.

Daniel Bowling, 46, of Sandhill Road, Irvine was charged with possession of a controlled substance, first degree and first offense (methamphetamine) on April 5, 2018.

Bowling pled guilty and was given a probated sentence.

Tarcia Richardson, waived an indictment on a March 17 charge of trafficking in a controlled substance, first degree and first offense. She allegedly had methamphetamine in her possession on March 17.

Richardson was sentenced to two serve two years with the Department of Corrections because she is in need of correctional treatment.

This sentence will run concurrently with another charge against Richardson.
