Weddings

Time changes many things, but weddings remain the same. From the quick unions of World War II or the carefree nuptials of the 60s, weddings share the same amazing journey: two people fall in love and decide to spend their lives together and make it official.

World War II sent young couples in love to the chapel . . . fast. Ceremonies took place just before the enlisted groom shipped out or during leave. Celebrations were simple because of timing and rationing. The bride either wore her best dress or made one. If there was a reception, it was a small one and the newlyweds spent their honeymoons at the nearest hotel.

The 50s were a fabulous decade for weddings. The movie, Father of the Bride inspired many parents to give their daughters a beautiful wedding.

Celebrity weddings including the 1953 wedding of Jacqueline Bouvier and John F. Kennedy and Grace Kelley's fairy tale nuptials with Prince Rainier III of Monaco in 1956, heightened the wedding fever in the 50s. Every bride wanted a princess wedding.

And last Saturday we had an American, bi-racial, actress lady to marry Prince Harry of England and become a princess: Meghan Markle.

Markle who identifies herself as a feminist, entered St. George's Cathedral alone rather than to have her father escort her down the aisle. Prince Charles, her future father-in-law and presumably the future king of England, met her halfway down the aisle and escorted her. It was a departure of tradition, in that it sent a message to the world that she plans to project a more inclusive monarchy. Her Mother, Doria Ragland sat opposite the queen.

A host of America celebrities attended such as: Oprah Winfrey, George and Amal Clooney, Serena Williams, and other Hollywood actresses and actors. A gospel choir sang "Stand by Me," and "This Little Light of Mine," a civil rights anthem. Bishop Curry of the Episcopal Church from Chicago, delivered a heartwarming tradition of black preaching as though he was preaching a Sunday sermon, in which I thought it was great; but a little lengthy.

When the couple were finally married and stepped out of the church and into the sunshine, a jolt went through the crowd, they cheered their first kiss as husband and wife.

The Brits feel a special affection for Prince Harry, who was only 12 when his mother, Princess Diana, died in a car crash. Harry was made to walk behind her coffin and much of the country watched as his face crumpled. His popularity helped his decision of Markle, an American of mixed race. Although traditions were stretched, it still doesn't make things easy for the couple. It is a new era for the British royal family.

Teaching Teens to Drive Can Be Nerve-Racking Experience

America's Heartland

Roger Alford
RogerAlford1@GMail.Com

"Turn right here," said a very patient father to his teenage son who was learning to drive.

"My bad," the father said calmly. "I meant the next street, not this fellow's lawn."

When my own teens were learning to drive, I always tried to act calm as I sat helplessly in the passenger seat while we sped down rural roads, city streets and interstate highways. But I'd have to confess I didn't always pull it off. It's not easy to stay calm with a new driver at the wheel.

Of course, that pales in comparison to the kind of nerve-racking circumstances we can find ourselves in in this world. Yet, the Lord encourages us to remain calm, no matter what we're facing.

The Gospel of Mark records a time when Jesus was crossing the Sea of Galilee with his disciples. He had laid down in the back of the boat for a nap when a violent storm arose. Strong wind blew up big waves and water splashed over the gunnels. The disciples were horribly frightened, and they woke Jesus up.

"Master, carest not that we perish? And Jesus arose and rebuked the wind and said unto the sea, peace, be still. And the wind ceased and the there was a great calm. And he said until them, why are ye so fearful? How is it that ye have no faith? And they feared exceedingly, and said one to another, what manner of man is this, that even the wind and sea obey him?" (Mark 4: 35-41).

The disciples faith faded in the middle of that storm. They were so fearful that they lost sight that the Lord was traveling with them, that there was no safer place for them to be than in that boat with the Savior.

To be clear, there is a difference between healthy fear and unhealthy fear. Healthy fear can keep us from doing things that could put in jeopardy, like walking too close to the edge of a cliff. Unhealthy fear will paralyze us so that we become unable do even the things that the Lord would have us do, like stand up in front of a congregation and preach or sing or teach.

Faith is an effective antidote to fear. When we have faith to know God is in the boat with us, we have no reason to fear. But when it's not a boat, but a car, and it's our teenager behind the wheel, it's probably OK to be a little nervous.
