I Lit A Candle Tonight

I lit a candle tonight, in honor of you
Remembering your life, and all the times we'd been through.

Such a small little light the candle made Until I realized how much in darkness it lit the way.

All the tears I've cried in all my grief and pain
What a garden they grew, watered with human rain.

I sometimes can't see beyond the moment, in hopeless despair.

But then your memory sustains me, in heartaches repair.

I can wait for the tomorrow, when my sorrows ease
Until then I'll light this candle, and let my memories run free.
