Maudie's Naughties

How Old Am I?

A very healthy, spry-looking 95-year-old man moves into a nursing home. He walks up to a man walking slowly down the hall and says, "How old do you think I am?"

The man answers: "I'd say 60."

"Nope, I'm 95!" the man boasts.

Down the hall, he sees a woman in a room watching TV and walks up to her and asks her to guess his age.

She says, "Pull down your pants, and I'll tell you."

"You can't do that," he says. "No way!"

"Pull down your pants and I'll prove it," she says.

He does, and she says, "You're 95."

The man gives her an astonished look and asks, "How could you know that?"

She shrugs and says, "I heard you tell the fellow in the hall."

Gifts for Mom

The first son said, "I built a big house for our mother."

The second said, "I sent her a Mercedes with a driver."

The third smiled and said, "I've got you both beat. You remember how mom enjoyed reading the Bible? And you know she can't see very well. So I sent her a remarkable parrot that recites the entire Bible. It took elders in the church 12 years to teach him. He's one of a kind. Mama just has to name the chapter and verse, and the parrot recites it."

Soon thereafter, mom sent out her letters of thanks: "Milton," she wrote one son, "The house you built is so huge. I live in only one room, but I have to clean the whole house."

"Gerald," she wrote to another, "I am too old to travel. I stay most of the time at home, so I rarely use the Mercedes. And the driver is so rude!"

"Dearest Donald," she wrote to her third son, "You have the good sense to know what your mother likes. The chicken was delicious."

Contempt of Court

A New Yorker was forced to take a day off from work to appear for a minor traffic summons.

He grew increasingly restless as he waited hour after endless hour for his case to be heard. When his name was called late in the afternoon, he stood before the judge, only to hear that court would be adjourned for the rest of the afternoon and he would have to return the next day.

"What for?!?!" he snapped at the judge. His honor, equally irked by a tedious day and sharp query, roared out loud: "Twenty dollars contempt of court! That's why!"

Then, noticing the man checking his wallet, the judge relented: "That's all right. You don't have to pay now."

The young man replied, "I know. But I'm just seeing if I have enough for a couple more words."

Milk Bath

Trixie is talking to a girl at work and can't help but notice how pretty and beautiful the co-worker's skin is. So she asks her outright what makes her skin so soft and beautiful.

"Well, once a week I fill a bathtub up with milk and soak in it." So Trixie picks up Mitzie and they drive out to the farm to talk to Howard's dad about it.

"I'd like to buy a lot of milk," says Trixie.

"How much?" asks Farmer Green.

"Well, quite a lot because I'm going to soak in it."

"Do you need pasturized?" he asks.

"No," replies Trixie. "Just up to my shoulders."

Lost Contact Lens

A teenager loses a contact lens while playing basketball in his driveway. After a fruitless search, he tells his mother the lens is nowhere to be found.

Undaunted, she goes outside and in a few minutes, returns with the lens in her hand.

"How did you manage to find it, Mom?" the teenager asks.

"We weren't looking for the same thing," she replies. "You were looking for a small piece of plastic. I was looking for $150."

Root Hog or Die

All of us country people know what that means, whether it pertains to the farm, or trying to get by in this bad economy. You have to have raised hogs and fed them to know the true meaning, but "Root Hog or Die" seems to have more meaning to all of us, every day. But did you know who was the first person whom the phrase was attributed to -- Davy Crockett in 1834. He reportedly said in his biography, "We know'd that nothing more could happen to us if we went than if we staid, for it looked like it was to be starvation any way; we therefore determined to go on the old saying, root hog or die."

Medical Tests

Silas goes to see his Doctor for consultation over some lab tests. "I've got good news and bad news!" says the Doctor.

"Give me the good news first!" says Silas.

"The good news is your tests indicated you only have 24 hours to live!"

"Geeze!" says Silas, "If that's the good news, what's the bad news?"

"You were supposed to come in yesterday!!"
